General Information on Maine's Transportation Services

Regularly Scheduled Local Bus Service

Sixteen fixed-route transit systems provide regularly scheduled bus service in Maine. The state's larger cities offer frequent service on a variety of routes, serving local commuters, shoppers, senior citizens, persons with disabilities and others.

Portland's METRO is the largest system in the state, with 21 buses, 7 routes and 1.4 million annual riders. The BAT in Bangor is the second largest, with 15 buses, 10 routes and over a half million riders a year. citylink in Lewiston-Auburn operates 8 buses on 9 routes and carries 180,000 annual riders.

Smaller systems in Augusta, Waterville, Paris, Belfast, Rockland, Bath, South Portland, Sanford, Biddeford, Saco, Old Orchard Beach and Ellsworth operate 5 days a week, helping area residents get around town without the use of a private car.

In rural areas of western and eastern Maine, some routes receive regularly scheduled service once or twice a week.

Two Indian Reservations in Washington County provide area residents with local bus service.

Subscription Commuter, Park & Ride and Ride Share Programs

Many Maine workers travel considerable distances to work each day without the worry and expense of driving a car. They are benefiting from a growing network of vanpool and commuter bus services available to workers in the state on a low-cost subscription basis.

In most cases, commuters sign up for one month or longer, and pay a set fee regardless of the number of times they actually ride.

The ZOOM Turnpike Express provides weekday commuter service from Biddeford-Saco to Portland. The service is sponsored by the Maine Turnpike Authority and the Maine Department of Transportation.

Go Maine, a statewide rideshare program sponsored by the Maine Department of Transportation and the Maine Turnpike Authority, manages a fleet of 9 vans transporting state workers and others to and from Augusta each day. MDOT also maintains a series of Park 'n Ride lots that allow commuters to meet and travel to work in one car. Statewide Rideshare information is available at www.gomaine.org.

Commuter bus service to Bath Iron Works is provided daily by RTP, Coastal Trans and Hudson Bus Lines. In addition, Bath Iron Works sponsors five Park 'n Ride buses transporting over 1,400 workers each day. Private bus service is provided to employees of the Kittery Naval Shipyard.

Regional Public Providers

Maine leads the nation in its approach to social service transportation. Instead of having individual programs provide their own transportation services, social service agencies in Maine can purchase rides for their clients from one of nine regional transportation providers in the state.

This "coordinated" approach frees social service agencies from having to worry about bus drivers and vehicle repairs, allowing them to concentrate on what they know best. And it means that costly buses and vans can be shared by a variety of programs.

In many cases, the same bus can be used to take Sheltered Workshop clients to work, preschool children to Headstart, MaineCare clients to the doctor, and senior citizens to their midday lunch program.

Regional providers offer "door-to-door" services. Most require a one-day or two-day advance reservation. In addition to client services, most programs also offer transportation that is available for anyone who needs a ride.

Volunteer Driver Programs

Volunteers play an important role in meeting health care needs in a rural state like Maine. High quality medical facilities will not help if the people who need the services are stuck at home with no way to get to the doctor.

Because of the rural nature of the state, it is not possible to schedule a bus or van for every appointment.

This is especially true for isolated individuals who must travel long distances to receive special treatments at regional medical centers.

Volunteer driver programs allow concerned individuals to help their neighbors by offering rides in their private cars. Drivers are trained and certified by the sponsoring agency, and are reimbursed for costs based on the miles they travel.

Rides are arranged in advance. Usually a one or two-day advance reservation is required. This service is offered for medical trips to MaineCare clients who are unable to use regular public buses, or where other bus and van service is not available.

Sheltered Workshop Transportation

Employment programs for persons with developmental disabilities are located throughout the state of Maine. These not-for-profit programs offer a wide array of training opportunities for Maine residents who are developmentally disabled.

These programs help participants develop the skills they need to live more independently in the community. For some, this can mean preparation for employment in a private business. For others, it can mean continued work in a setting that offers a higher level of service and support. For others, it means help with developing basic daily living skills.

Developmentally disabled adults depend on bus transportation to get to and from work each day. The state's regional transportation systems operate a combined fleet of over 160 buses and vans to provide these individuals with the services they need.

Funding for Sheltered Workshop transportation is provided by the Department of Health and Human Services and the state's MaineCare program.

Transportation for Senior Citizen Lunch Programs

The midday meal is often the prime social hour for senior citizens in Maine. Nutritious hot dinners are served year round at community centers throughout the state. These programs give elderly Maine residents a chance to get out into the community for good food and companionship.

Some senior centers offer card games and other social activities in addition to lunch.

Door-to-door bus and van service is available for most senior citizen lunch programs. In many cases, senior citizens can combine stops at the grocery store with their ride home from lunch.

An elderly bus rider in Ellsworth said: "My husband always did all the driving. After he passed away, I was left with no means of transportation. When they started the bus service, it was such a blessing to me. I was really stuck and depressed. The bus rescued me."

Senior citizen lunch programs in Maine are sponsored by the Aroostook, Southern Maine, Eastern, and Western Maine Area Agencies on Aging, and by the Senior Spectrum.

Intercity Bus and Ferry Services

Intercity buses and ferries provide Maine with important local, national, and international transportation links.

Concord Trailways, Vermont Transit, and SMT offer fast bus service to New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Eastern Canada. Cyr Bus Lines offers daily service between Bangor and Aroostook County. West's Transportation connects Bangor and Calais. And the Shuttle Bus provides service between Biddeford and Portland.

Private and public ferry services continue to provide a vital link for Maine's many island communities. International ferries provide service to Canada from ports in Bar Harbor, Eastport, and Portland.

Amtrak passenger train service between Boston and Portland began in December 2001 providing Maine with access to Amtrak's nationwide rail passenger network for the first time. Service is planned to extend to Brunswick and Auburn-Lewiston in the future. Station stops in Maine include Portland, Old Orchard Beach (seasonal), Saco, and Wells.
